The Purchase Process

01 Preparations Before the Purchase

The buying process in Spain differs significantly from other countries. In our introduction, we will highlight key considerations for buying a home in Spain.

02 Financing

Before signing a contract, ensure financing is in place. We help you connect with trusted banks and align mortgage approval with payment deadlines, avoiding delays in the deed signing and ensuring a smooth purchase process in Spain.

03 Attorney with Power of Attorney

We strongly recommend hiring a lawyer when buying property in Spain. Legal fees usually represent around 1% + VAT of the purchase price, though rates may vary. The lawyer handles all contract details, ensuring a secure and smooth process. To save time, we suggest signing a power of attorney at a Spanish Notary Public, ideally with your lawyer. This can also be done in your home country, but it must include an Apostille stamp. A notarized copy of your passport is attached to the document and sent to the lawyer in Spain by courier. Most foreign buyers are unfamiliar with Spanish property laws, so having legal support is key to protecting your interests.

Off-Plan & Resale Property Transactions

Off-Plan Under Construction

Reservation Contract

The reservation contract, created by the developer upon purchasing a property under construction, is relatively simple in design. Its purpose is to ensure that the property is taken off the market. It should include essential provisions such as deadlines for payments and signing the deed, as well as outlining the rights and obligations of both the buyer and the seller.

Purchase Contract

Signed when the building license is approved. It is important that you have a lawyer to review the contract from the developer. In general, the contract should at least state the following:

- Detailed description of the property.
- How expenses/fees are to be distributed.
- When the deed is to be signed.
- Legal position of the parties in the event of default.

However, in some cases, you may proceed directly to signing the deed if the home is already completed.

Technical Inspection of New Buildings

Before signing the deed, you're entitled to a "courtesy visit" to ensure the property is delivered with all fixtures and finishes in place. After handover, you can inspect the home—alone or with the developer—and prepare a snagging list within 30 days. While deed signing cannot be delayed due to minor defects, exceptions apply if the home is uninhabitable. Buyers have 1 year to report visible issues, 3 years for hidden defects, and a 10-year structural warranty. We offer on-site inspections by our own skilled craftsmen, who often catch issues others may miss. This final review is key to protecting your investment and ensuring peace of mind. Always consider the level of post-sale service when choosing your property advisor.

Licenses

Similar to Norway, a completion certificate ("Licencia de primera ocupación" in Spanish) is issued when the building is completed according to the building license. Legally, the building is considered habitable only after a completion license has been issued, allowing for permanent connections of electricity and water. Therefore, contracts for electricity and water cannot be established until after the deed signing/takeover, which typically occurs within 14 days from the order.

We advise customers against planning to use the apartment during the first month after taking over, as several processes occur simultaneously, making it challenging. Discuss this topic with us to better understand how to plan your takeover. Each takeover process is unique, and with our team, the prerequisites for a successful takeover are high.

Bank Guarantee

When purchasing an apartment under construction, it's crucial to ensure that a bank guarantee is provided for the amounts paid during the construction period. The seller is legally obligated to provide a bank guarantee during this period. It's important to inquire about the duration of validity of the bank guarantee.

Spanish law mandates that the bank guarantee must cover the amounts paid during the construction period, and it should remain valid until the completion of the building. In case of default by the seller, the law requires repayment of the amount paid plus interest to the buyer.

Costs

All purchase amounts advertised are exclusive of taxes. To estimate the total purchase price, it's necessary to add 11,2% (10%VAT + 1,2% Stamp Duty Tax).

All construction projects have a payment plan prepared by the developer. Many customers looking for a house may think that they have to pay the full amount upfront, but this is not true. Here is an example of a payment plan.

Typical Payment Plan

- Property Reservation: €6,000 - €15,000
- Upon Contract Signing: 20% of the Purchase Price + 10%VAT
- During the Construction Process: 10% of the Purchase Price + 10%VAT
- On Taking Over & Signing the Deed: 70% of the Purchase Price + 10%VAT

Resale Property

Reservation Contract

Typically arranged by a broker when purchasing a second-hand property, the reservation contract is relatively straightforward. Its purpose is to secure the property and remove it from the market. It should include essential provisions such as payment deadlines, deed signing arrangements, as well as the rights and obligations of both the buyer and seller.

Purchase Contract

Typically finalized approximately 2-3 weeks after signing the reservation contract for the purchase of a used property. It's essential to have a lawyer draft the contract or review the seller's contract. In general, the contract should specify the following minimum details:

- Detailed description of the property.
- How expenses/fees are to be distributed.
- When the deed must be signed and the legal position of the parties in the event of default.

However, it sometimes happens that you proceed directly to signing the deed. If the property is sold furnished, the inventory list should be attached to the purchase contract.

Technical Inspection

We strongly recommend a technical inspection before signing the purchase contract, especially for older properties. The cost typically ranges from €800 to €1,000. Although it's common to place a €6,000 deposit to take the property off the market, the inspection should ideally be completed before any binding agreement is made.

This process helps detect issues that may justify a price adjustment, if they are significant enough to affect your decision. However, it's important to understand that some wear and tear is expected in a resale home and doesn't necessarily justify a reduction.

A thorough inspection gives you a clear picture of the property's condition and helps you move forward with confidence, avoiding surprises after the handover.

Attachments

Before signing the deed, it's important to confirm that all property-related taxes, such as IBI (property tax), waste collection, and condominium fees— are fully paid. These obligations are tied to the property, not the owner, and will transfer to the buyer if unsettled.

If any debt is found, the seller can pay it beforehand, or the buyer's lawyer may retain the due amount from the purchase price and settle it directly.

At signing, the seller must provide the latest IBI receipt and a certificate from the homeowners' association confirming no outstanding fees.

We also advise requesting a land registry extract (Nota Simple) to verify any liens or legal issues. Note: unpaid local taxes may not appear unless the property has been seized.

Resale homes are generally cheaper in tax terms than new builds and are exempt from stamp duty tax. A flat 7% transfer tax now applies to all resales, regardless of price.
